

PLATE 12.

Top Row — "Riverside's Esther", made by the Riverside Glass Works, Wellsburg, W. Va. in 1896 has the company's name preceding it to identify it from the other pattern called "Esther" which was made by the Westmoreland Glass Company. "Riverside's Esther" was made in clear, and both this and the ruby-stained ware were made plain and etched. 1. Toothpick holder, scalloped top,  $2\frac{3}{8}$  inches high. 2. Goblet, etched, 6 inches high. 3. Miniature creamer, engraved wreath,  $3\frac{1}{8}$  inches high. 4. An imitation of cut glass, "Shoeshone" pattern was popular in the late 1880's. Bowl, serrated scallops,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  inches high,  $4\frac{3}{4}$  inches diameter. 5. Goblet, clear diamonds,  $6\frac{1}{4}$  inches high. 6. Toothpick holder, serrated scallops,  $2\frac{3}{4}$  inches high. 7. Wine, clear diamonds,  $4\frac{1}{2}$  inches high. 8. Bulbous cream pitcher, 5 inches high. 9. Tumbler, unusual clear top, red diamonds,  $3\frac{3}{4}$  inches high.

Second Row — The two patterns in this row are very similar and have the same enameled floral decorations, indicating they were decorated by the same company. The first four pieces are "Button Arches" pattern, made by the Duncan and Miller Glass Company, Washington, Pa. and decorated by the Oriental Glass Company, Pittsburgh. 1. Wine,  $4\frac{1}{8}$  inches high. 2. Tumbler, middle band of ruby-staining decorated with spray of enameled flowers and a gold band on top, 4 inches high. 3. Banded tumbler, with gold edged frosted band around middle of ruby-stained top,  $3\frac{3}{4}$  inches high. 4. Miniature cream pitcher with souvenir etching,  $2\frac{3}{4}$  inches high. 5. This pattern is sometimes called "Scalloped Daisy", and was decorated with the same floral spray as on Number 2, this row, from the Oriental Glass Company, Pittsburgh, Pa. 5. Covered butter dish, enameled flowers,  $5\frac{1}{4}$  inches high. 6. Open sugar, enameled flowers,  $4\frac{1}{8}$  inches high. 7. Tumbler, enameled flowers, 4 inches high. 8. Wine,  $4\frac{1}{8}$  inches high.

Third Row — "Sheaf and Block", compare with "Majestic" pattern, Plate 10, top row. 1. Spoonholder, serrated top,  $4\frac{1}{2}$  inches high. 2. Rare cologne bottle,  $7\frac{3}{4}$  inches high. 3. Wine, etched spray,  $4\frac{1}{8}$  inches high. 4. Footed water pitcher, heavy, clear base,  $7\frac{1}{2}$  inches high. 5. Covered sugar, 7 inches high. 6. High standard, ruby-stained scalloped top celery vase,  $7\frac{7}{8}$  inches high. 7. Cream pitcher,  $5\frac{3}{8}$  inches high.

Bottom Row — "Henrietta" pattern, originally made by Adams and Company, Pittsburgh, and also by Columbia Glass Company, Findlay, Ohio and their successors, the U.S. Glass Company after 1893. It was also called "Hexagon Block", although "Henrietta" is more popular today. 1. Covered butter dish,  $5\frac{1}{2}$  inches high. 2. Sauce dish,  $1\frac{1}{4}$  inches high. 3. Tumbler,  $3\frac{7}{8}$  inches high. 4. "Florida" pattern, as it was called in 1893 in an advertisement of the Greensburg Glass Company, Greensburg, Pa., is also known as "Sunken Primrose" although the state name is the favorite. 4. Square bowl, ruby-stained corners with silver nitrate amber-stained flowers,  $7\frac{3}{4}$  inches square,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  inches high. 5. Sauce dish, same staining, 4 inches square,  $1\frac{1}{2}$  inches high. 6. Water pitcher, same staining,  $7\frac{1}{2}$  inches high. 7. Tumbler, ruby top, clear flowers,  $3\frac{7}{8}$  inches high. 8. Tumbler, clear top, amber-stained flowers,  $3\frac{7}{8}$  inches high.

